

Volunteers Needed

Recruitment for an Anemia Publication

June 1–30, 2010

The National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute of the National Institutes for Health is looking for volunteers for an upcoming publication that will focus on living with anemia.

Specifically, we are looking for volunteers in the Washington, DC metropolitan area, who have been diagnosed with iron-deficiency, aplastic, hemolytic, or pernicious anemia, and are using healthy lifestyle choices and medication, if appropriate, to control and manage their condition.

Volunteers will be asked to do the following:

- Briefly speak by phone with a staff person (15 minutes).
- If selected, participate in a phone interview about your experience with anemia and the lifestyle changes you have made (1 hour).
- If selected, participate in a photo shoot in the DC metro area (approx. 4 hours)

Contact before June 30, 2010

Mary Baldeon
American Institutes for Research
301-592-2160
mbaldeon@air.org